BURLEY — Three men have been arrested in the shooting deaths of a former Burley man and his friend in Las Vegas, Nev., this week.

The remains of Scott Rehn, 40, of Burley, and James Sorensen, 27, of Las Vegas, were found buried in a grave outside the city by Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department detectives Tuesday.

Rehn and Sorensen have been missing since February.

Tuesday police arrested Richard Hinger, 57, for the murder, according to a statement by Sgt. William Keeton.

Thursday Las Vegas police arrested Marnie Peot, 28, and Cameron Carlo, 21. Peot was charged with two counts of murder, and Carlo was charged with two counts accessory to the murders, according to a Keeton's statement.

Police say Rehn and Sorensen were shot during an argument at a trailer park around Feb. 19 — the day police were made aware of their disappearance.

Both bodies had been wrapped up after being shot, then taken to an area near Calville Bay. The bodies were buried four feet deep and their grave covered with boulders, the statement said.

For several months the parents, police, a private detective and some psychics had searched for the missing men. Monday an anonymous caller tipped police off to the suspects and location of the bodies.

Rehn was born and raised in Burley and had left for Las Vegas several years ago. Rehn owned a small trucking company in Las Vegas, which employed Sorensen.

No more information was available at press time Friday.
